1. INTRODUCTION / WELCOME

Welcome to the first edition of the Rali TT Vodafone Estoril-Portimão-Marrakech, a race that scores points for the World Cup for Cross Country Rallies 2010, the only one that includes the European continent, and this year emerging with a very special challenge.

Actually, Automóvel Club de Portugal (ACP) as the organizer and its leaders felt that "Transibérico" needed a more attractive and challenging new shape, without jeopardizing the quality and professionalism of the event, always recognized in the past by the Sports authorities, competitors and media.

It is the third evolution of a race, which was first only held in Portuguese territory, assuming, afterwards, an Iberian format being included in the World Cup calendar and, now, moving on to Morocco, in an ambitious project, which will surely passionate all those who are interested in this kind of sport.

The truth is that, without doubt, the allure with Africa has always been a truth for practitioners; therefore, the Rali TT Vodafone Estoril-Portimão-Marrakech is one of the ideal choices for those who want to enjoy the fascination, emotion and challenges of the African tracks, as well as the pleasure of driving the Portuguese stages, at moderate costs.

Besides our major sponsor, Vodafone, we can also count on the support of the Turismo de Portugal, Costa do Estoril, Câmara Municipal de Portimão, Hertz, Sociedade Central de Cervejas e Bebidas, the cities of Cascais, Beja, Grândola, Odemira, Monchique, Ourique, Almodôvar, Silves, Tavira, Alcoutim and Alcácer do Sal, Água Fonte Viva, RTP and the Moroccan authorities.

I also want to leave here a word of gratitude and appreciation to the property owners, who gently authorized the course of the race through their properties, and to the competitors and the Media who have always supported us by advertising the race.

And, last but not least, a special word to all those who are taking part in the organization and make this great event possible.

Carlos Barbosa
ACP Chairman

2. HISTORY

Brief History of the Event

1988 The event was organized for the first time by the Clube Aventura of Portugal, under the name “Sagres 500 – Guadiana”, following the enormous success of the “Baja of Portalegre”, the first Cross Country Baja held in Portugal which had started a year before, by the same organization. José Megre created the two events.

The purpose of this second event was to have an International Baja for cars and 4x4, since at that time the FIA did not authorise new international events for cars and bikes together, and Portalegre was already a mixed event, international for bikes and National for cars. So, in this first edition, the event was only national with an entry of around 300 teams - cars and bikes. It started in Lisbon and finished at Évora.

1989 The event took the name of “Baja Portugal 1000 Le Coq Sportif / Ourahotel” – and got a 250 cars entry, but no bikes, including 100 from other countries, among them, the best drivers of the Dakar Rally, who accepted the challenge raised by José Megre, himself a Dakar driver since 1982.

The event started and finished in Lisbon, and had a single special stage of 800 Km.

1990 The event took the name “Baja Phillips 1000” and kept a strong entry of more than 200 cars and no bikes, with one Special Stage of 800 km.

1991 The event started and finished in Tróia, a tourist resort, about 50 Km from Lisbon. This was also the first year of the “2 boucle system”, which means 2 laps of a 400 Km circuit.

1992 The centre of the rally moved, with the start and finish at Estoril, the prologue near Lisbon, in Jamor Stadium, and a special stage of 350 – 400 Km to be done twice.

From this year onwards, FIA accepted the motorbikes in the event.

1993 The event received the name of “Baja Nicola 1000” and counted for the FIA World Cup for Cross Country Rallies.

1996 The event was run under the name of “Baja Telecel 1000”

1997 The event was held with a single special stage of around 650 Km.

- 1998 The special stage was divided in two identical ones with 350 km each, with a refuelling and a regrouping between them, to allow the live TV broadcast at the start and arrival of the stages
- 2000 This was the first attempt to move the event from a Baja to a Cross Country Rally. The event was held in two days, 4 Special stages and a total of 800km. It was first time candidate for a Cross Country Rally, under the name of “Telecel 2000”.
- 2001 New designation for the event: “Baja Telecel / Vodafone 1000”.
- 2002 The event took the name of “Baja Vodafone 1000” (Portugal), with two days of competition and 3 special stages.
The event moved from Estoril to Évora, a World Heritage City.
- 2003 The event was similar to the one of the year 2000.
- 2005 The event counted for the FIA International Cup for Bajas on the first 4 days, and, with an extension of two more days and with one day in Spain, was an official candidate for the FIA World Cup for Cross Country Rallies, under the name of “Rally Transibérico”. The event moved back to Estoril with a prologue in Mafra and 7 special stages with a total of 1100 Km, on an overall 2000 Km event.
- 2006 The 2nd “Rally Vodafone Transibérico” was the 3rd leg of the FIA World Cup for Cross Country Rallies, and was held from 11th to 16th May.
Clube Aventura establishes an agreement with Automóvel Club de Portugal; thereafter this association became the official organiser of the event from 2007 onwards.
- 2007 ACP became the official organiser
- 2008 One extra leg was added to the event totalizing now approximately 1500km of stages.
Luc Alphand/Gilles Piccard (Mitsubishi Pajero) won the event.
- 2009 The last “Rally Vodafone Transibérico” – Now Rally TT Vodafone Estoril – Portimão – Marrakech.

Welcome to Morocco,

Red clay Kasbahs at the valley of the High Atlas. Stirring Souks in dusty cities. Great desert areas. Dunes. Beaches.

No other place is as fascinating and confusing as Morocco, a country full of contrasts, colourful landscapes, strange fragrances and exotic experiences.

The mountains shape the country, beginning at the Mediterranean Rif until the limestone plateau of the Medium Atlas and the 1000 km length of the High Atlas, whose southern slopes go down to the spectacular valley of the Dadès, the Draa and the Ziz.

There can be found fresh climates, snowy peaks and hot scorching winds from the Western Sahara.

This geographical diversity created multiple great and rich cultures, as different as their landscapes, from the Berber tribes, with light skin, to the nomad tribes of the South.

Morocco is a country that doesn't leave anybody indifferent. After each step, the visitor is taken and confused by an enormous and turbulent life and an unexpected generosity.

It's a unique experience.

Errachidia

Errachidia الراشـيـديـة إقليم is a province located on the south east of Morocco, in the Meknès-Tafilalet region, and it is considered to be one of the most historically important regions of Morocco.

Errachidia is bordered by the province of Figuig to the east, Beni Mellal and Azilal Khenifra to the west, Boulmane to the north and Algeria to the south

Errachidia, Errachidia, whose former name is Ksar Souk, was named My Rachid, in tribute to one of the main founders of the Alawite dynasty.

Zagora

Zagora is a town in the valley of the Draa River.

Originally it was called 'Tizigirt', Berber for 'twin peaks', referring to the form of the mountains.

The region of Zagora has a very old story, witnessed its cave paintings in Fom Chena and Tazarine and the necropolis of Fom Larjam.

Marrakech

The Southern capital is a kind of magnet of the centre of Morocco that formerly attracted the camel trains from the South.

This oasis was the best city, which had already seen many merchants.

Nowadays, it continues to be a great touristic attraction, which combines many travellers fascinated by the legends and the mysteries.

The enormous 12 km long walls, eroded by the time, contain the turbulent life of the city.

The heat, the dust and the adobe walls turn Marrakech into a unique African and Moroccan city, containing an attitude and panorama different from the other Moroccan cities.
